NOW'S THE TIME TO VISIT THE MOORE-TURNER HERITAGE GARDENS

Start Your Summer With a Visit to These Spectacular Historic Gardens
Now in Full Bloom

Come and see the Vanhoutte Spirea, known as the classic bridal wreath spirea – a magnificent display of cascading blooms along the historic carriage road. The perennial gardens are full of color with the heritage iris and nepata blooming and the peonies ready to open.

Located in Edwidge Woldson Park, the Gardens are owned and operated by the City of Spokane Parks & Recreation Department. Re-discovered in 1998, the Gardens were restored in 2007 to the time they flourished between 1911 and 1914 with community funds from grants, donations, and a substantial gift from Myrtle Woldson in honor of her mother, Edwidge Woldson.

Located at 507 West Seventh Avenue, the Moore-Turner property was purchased by the Spokane Park Board in 1945 along with the adjacent D.C. Corbin property to form a park close to the city center. Previously named Pioneer Park, the park was re-named Edwidge Woldson Park on May 13, 2011.

Moore-Turner Heritage Gardens, west of Corbin Art Center, are open to the public Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. (closed Monday & Tuesday).

The Gardens and the D.C. Corbin House (Corbin Art Center) are listed on the local, state, and national historic registers and are situated in the Marycliff/Cliff Park National Register Historic District. For additional information please call the Corbin Art Center at 509.625.6677.
